TRADITIONAL GAMES RURAL STYLE

“STREET IS A PUBLIC SPACE AND PLAY IS A CULTURAL GOOD FOR ALL AGES”

The interest in reviving the search for the essence of the game as a human differential fact, as well as the recovery of the public space that belongs to the people and the expressions and relationships that are created in it, are the driving forces behind this project. The street is a public space and play is a cultural good for all ages. The combination of the two is a socio-cultural good, which will hence grow better ...

... human relationships as inhabitants of a society.

We understand play as a tool that helps us to express ourselves through our language to our closest people, and also to interact with us intergenerationally.

The game is synonymous to recreation, fun, joy and, at the same time, is a tool for the exchange of knowledge, sensations, information, emotions...

The traditional game conveys the value of the immaterial, the game for the game, the pleasure of playing. Causes direct communication between one, two, or more people regardless of gender or age. Concentrating in here and now makes us live the present intensely. At this point, nothing is more important than aiming, or solving the quiz, or cheering on the partner. Seen this way, it is a very useful tool when it comes to creating group dynamics, in terms of personal improvement, helping us overcome all the barriers that sometimes prevent human beings from being free.

Playing on the street makes it even easier to share this joyful, magical and special moment with people we may not have met and would never meet, quickly and through magic, dialogue is generated through play.

To make the choice of games we have focused on the rural world, the world of the farmer, the shepherd, the country. We have tried to respect the sizes and regulations of the games chosen as much as possible, others have been rethought to be more fun and others have been invented. Each game is accompanied by an explanation of both its story and its rules.
